

Orsolya Quenneville

Character Dossier

Meticulous and easily flustered alchemist of the traveling Circus of Marrow and Light

Overview

Orsolya Quenneville is a alchemist living in the traveling Circus of Marrow and Light. Orsolya is 56 years old, originally from Dry Harbor, and is known around the big top as meticulous and easily flustered. In conversation Orsolya never uses contractions and apologises for it.

Background

Orsolya arrived in the traveling Circus of Marrow and Light 27 years ago after leaving Dry Harbor under circumstances Orsolya describes differently every time. The first job was hauling for the Ringmaster's troupe; the second was the one that stuck. Today Orsolya works as a alchemist near the menagerie wagons and is paid, when paid at all, in copper bits.

Orsolya learned the trade from Halcyon Hartwell, who still drops by unannounced. The longest-running feud in Orsolya's life is with Leocadia Ashgrove, over a matter neither will explain. The person Orsolya trusts most is Halcyon Hartwell.

Current goal: to build a boat with no nails in it. Greatest fear: running out of salt.

Personality and speech

Temperament: meticulous and easily flustered.

Speech pattern: Orsolya never uses contractions and apologises for it.

Tells: when lying, Orsolya mentions Biscuit the raven for no reason.

Verified facts

These facts are canonical for this character and may be used to verify knowledge-bank retrieval.

Full name	Orsolya Quenneville
Role	alchemist
Home	the traveling Circus of Marrow and Light
Hometown	Dry Harbor
Age	56
Favourite dish	grandmother's chestnut soup
Pet	Biscuit, a raven
Lucky number	323

Workshop password	ember-cove
Mentor	Halcyon Hartwell
Rival	Leocadia Ashgrove
Closest friend	Halcyon Hartwell

Secret

Orsolya has a sibling nobody in the traveling Circus of Marrow and Light knows about, living quietly in Dry Harbor.

Sample dialogue

Visitor: What do you do here?

Orsolya: I am the alchemist. Has been that way longer than you have been asking questions.

Visitor: What is your favourite thing to eat?

Orsolya: Grandmother's chestnut soup. Do not tell Leocadia I said so.

Visitor: Is Biscuit yours?

Orsolya: Biscuit belongs to nobody. Biscuit tolerates me. Lucky number is 323, if you were about to ask.

Chronicle

Day-to-day records kept by the character, in no particular order of importance.

Entry 1, winter of year 39

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. Orsolya found a clockwork bird half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Orsolya found a ledger half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 2, spring of year 39

Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the menagerie wagons. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Orsolya repaired the pair of spectacles at the menagerie wagons for Sunniva, who paid in 42 copper bits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold.

Entry 3, winter of year 39

The weather turned. Orsolya moved the hand bell indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about who really won the regatta. At the cookfire, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone. Orsolya closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 76 of everything, except the iron kettle, which is always short. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 4, winter of year 39

Orsolya closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. At the costume tent, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. Orsolya closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the hand bell indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the new curfew. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 5, summer of year 40

At the cookfire, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the harvest count. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rumours about the new curfew reached the cookfire. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Orsolya won 44 copper bits on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on supper. Orsolya won 89 copper bits on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 6, spring of year 40

Orsolya was hired to carry a clockwork bird from the menagerie wagons to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Orsolya won 69 copper bits on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on supper. Zora came by asking about the census. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 7, autumn of year 40

A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the quarantine. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 83 of everything, except the bolt of linen, which is always short. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the quarantine. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 8, winter of year 40

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 21 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the ticket wagon, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. Magnus came by asking about the quarantine. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 9, summer of year 40

Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 19 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short. Orsolya closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Orsolya closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. At the cookfire, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 10, spring of year 40

Orsolya found a signal flag half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Cassius came by asking about the missing shipment. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Orsolya was hired to carry a pair of spectacles from the cookfire to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the cookfire. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 11, spring of year 40

A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a brass lantern on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. Zeph came by asking about the quarantine. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 12, autumn of year 40

A dispute over the census flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Orsolya repaired the signal flag at the menagerie wagons for Tiberius, who paid in 45 copper bits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 13, summer of year 40

Orsolya was hired to carry a tin whistle from the costume tent to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Orsolya won 2 copper bits on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on supper. A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Orsolya repaired the hand bell at the costume tent for Matthias, who paid in 87 copper bits and a long story about the right way to mend a net. A dispute over the comet flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 14, autumn of year 40

Orsolya repaired the clockwork bird at the big top for Xavier, who paid in 13 copper bits and a long story about the census. Orsolya closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. Ursula came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 15, winter of year 40

A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a glass float on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. Xavier came by asking about the census. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 16, autumn of year 40

At the menagerie wagons, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. Petra came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the tin whistle indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the tariff on salt.

Entry 17, spring of year 41

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tax on doors. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the clockwork bird indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about who really won the regatta.

Entry 18, autumn of year 41

Orsolya was hired to carry a hand bell from the cookfire to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Orsolya closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the cookfire. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Orsolya found a sack of salt half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 19, autumn of year 41

Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. Orsolya won 73 copper bits on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on supper. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 20, winter of year 41

Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the ticket wagon. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Ursula came by asking about who really won the regatta. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 71 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short.

Entry 21, winter of year 42

Orsolya found a sextant half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Orsolya closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Orsolya closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 22, winter of year 42

Orsolya repaired the wax seal at the costume tent for Amadou, who paid in 68 copper bits and a long story about the census. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rumours about the quarantine reached the costume tent. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Orsolya found a oilskin map half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 23, spring of year 42

Orsolya won 49 copper bits on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on supper. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the grain scale indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about whether the bridge will hold. Dorothea came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 24, spring of year 42

At the big top, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya was hired to carry a iron kettle from the big top to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 25, summer of year 43

Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. Orsolya repaired the bolt of linen at the cookfire for Tiberius, who paid in 59 copper bits and a long story about the singing at the docks. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 26, winter of year 43

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the ticket wagon, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone. Orsolya repaired the coil of rope at the ticket wagon for Yevgenia, who paid in 50 copper bits and a long story about the price of lamp oil. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a brass lantern on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 27, winter of year 43

Orsolya closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Orsolya found a clockwork bird half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Orsolya closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the big top: 40 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short.

Entry 28, autumn of year 43

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the harvest count. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the harvest count. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 29, spring of year 44

Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 17 of everything, except the hand bell, which is always short. Fenwick came by asking about the singing at the docks. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 87 of everything, except the signal flag, which is always short.

Entry 30, winter of year 44

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the new curfew. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Orsolya was hired to carry a hand bell from the big top to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the new curfew reached the big top. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. At the big top, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the census. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 31, spring of year 44

A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the big top: 21 of everything, except the bolt of linen, which is always short. Orsolya found a grain scale half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 32, spring of year 44

Marisol came by asking about the old tunnels. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. Orsolya found a grain scale half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the copper pipe indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the new curfew.

Entry 33, autumn of year 45

Orsolya found a oilskin map half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the ledger indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the census. Orsolya found a grain scale half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. Orsolya found a tin whistle half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 34, summer of year 45

Orsolya closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Rumours about the tax on doors reached the cookfire. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Orsolya was hired to carry a coil of rope from the cookfire to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Orsolya found a hand bell half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 35, autumn of year 45

Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 36, summer of year 45

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. Orsolya was hired to carry a cracked compass from the ticket wagon to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the new curfew reached the ticket wagon. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 37, spring of year 46

Orsolya was hired to carry a sextant from the menagerie wagons to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. Orsolya closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 38, autumn of year 46

Orsolya won 56 copper bits on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on supper. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 39, winter of year 46

Gideon came by asking about the new curfew. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Orsolya won 37 copper bits on a bet about the census and spent all of it on supper. Orsolya closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. At the costume tent, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 40, winter of year 46

The weather turned. Orsolya moved the coil of rope indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the tax on doors. Orsolya repaired the sack of salt at the costume tent for Dorothea, who paid in 83 copper bits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 55 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short. Orsolya found a clockwork bird half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 41, autumn of year 46

Orsolya won 84 copper bits on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on supper. Orsolya found a cracked compass half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Ursula came by asking about the census. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the costume tent, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 42, winter of year 46

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 43, autumn of year 46

Orsolya repaired the signal flag at the ticket wagon for Juniper, who paid in 17 copper bits and a long story about who really won the regatta. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rumours about the comet reached the ticket wagon. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Orsolya won 73 copper bits on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 44, summer of year 46

Orsolya repaired the spool of wire at the ticket wagon for Yusuf, who paid in 52 copper bits and a long story about the right way to mend a net. At the ticket wagon, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the missing shipment. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 45, winter of year 46

Orsolya repaired the coil of rope at the big top for Noor, who paid in 56 copper bits and a long story about the tax on doors. At the big top, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. Orsolya was hired to carry a copper pipe from the big top to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 46, summer of year 46

Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 48 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the census for an hour and parted better friends than before. Baptiste came by asking about the quarantine. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 47, winter of year 46

Orsolya repaired the sextant at the menagerie wagons for Phaedra, who paid in 71 copper bits and a long story about the harvest count. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. Orsolya found a wax seal half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 48, spring of year 46

Orsolya won 10 copper bits on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on supper. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the quarantine. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. At the big top, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 49, spring of year 46

Orsolya closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Orsolya repaired the hand bell at the cookfire for Rowan, who paid in 17 copper bits and a long story about the new curfew. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 53 of everything, except the clockwork bird, which is always short. At the cookfire, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real brass lantern from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 50, summer of year 46

Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the big top. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Orsolya was hired to carry a ledger from the big top to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 51, summer of year 46

The weather turned. Orsolya moved the coil of rope indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the price of lamp oil. Orsolya was hired to carry a bundle of letters from the ticket wagon to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Thaddeus came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the ticket wagon, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 52, autumn of year 46

Orsolya closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the pair of spectacles indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the rumour of a second well. Orsolya won 28 copper bits on a bet about the missing shipment and spent all of it on supper. Mara came by asking about the harvest count. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the coil of rope indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the harvest count.

Entry 53, summer of year 47

Someone left a iron kettle on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. Orsolya was hired to carry a hand bell from the menagerie wagons to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Halcyon came by asking about the census. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. Orsolya was hired to carry a ledger from the menagerie wagons to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 54, autumn of year 47

Orsolya was hired to carry a bundle of letters from the big top to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the sack of salt indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the tax on doors. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the census. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Orsolya won 5 copper bits on a bet about the missing shipment and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 55, summer of year 47

Orsolya found a cracked compass half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Orsolya closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 41 of everything, except the oilskin map, which is always short. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 56, winter of year 47

Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 61 of everything, except the glass float, which is always short. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Orsolya was hired to carry a clockwork bird from the cookfire to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 57, winter of year 48

Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the costume tent. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Orsolya repaired the hand bell at the costume tent for Phaendra, who paid in 8 copper bits and a long story about the rumour of a second well. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the wax seal indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the census.

Entry 58, summer of year 48

At the ticket wagon, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone. Orsolya repaired the grain scale at the ticket wagon for Sable, who paid in 51 copper bits and a long story about the rumour of a second well. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the ticket wagon. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 52 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short.

Entry 59, autumn of year 48

Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 54 of everything, except the glass float, which is always short. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. Orsolya closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Orsolya was hired to carry a glass float from the costume tent to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 60, spring of year 48

A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya won 83 copper bits on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on supper. Orsolya was hired to carry a copper pipe from the big top to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. Orsolya closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 61, summer of year 48

Rumours about the tax on doors reached the ticket wagon. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya won 40 copper bits on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on supper. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the ticket wagon, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 62, spring of year 48

The weather turned. Orsolya moved the signal flag indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the new curfew. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 30 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. Rumours about the quarantine reached the cookfire. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 63, autumn of year 48

Someone left a tin whistle on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. Orsolya won 70 copper bits on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on supper. Someone left a glass float on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. Orsolya found a glass float half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about the old tunnels reached the ticket wagon. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 64, summer of year 48

Orsolya closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the bolt of linen indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the census. Rumours about the census reached the costume tent. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 65, summer of year 49

A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 38 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. Orsolya won 21 copper bits on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 66, summer of year 49

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the quarantine. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the menagerie wagons, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 67, autumn of year 49

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over the comet flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 68, winter of year 49

The weather turned. Orsolya moved the iron kettle indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about who really won the regatta. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the missing shipment. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Orsolya was hired to carry a clockwork bird from the big top to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 69, summer of year 49

A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the ticket wagon. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a signal flag on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the coil of rope indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the price of lamp oil. Orsolya repaired the copper pipe at the ticket wagon for Baptiste, who paid in 78 copper bits and a long story about the harvest count.

Entry 70, spring of year 49

Orsolya closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. Orsolya repaired the hand bell at the ticket wagon for Halcyon, who paid in 54 copper bits and a long story about the right way to mend a net. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 71, autumn of year 49

Freya came by asking about the tax on doors. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the costume tent. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 72, spring of year 49

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Kestrel came by asking about the census. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. Orsolya found a sextant half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Yevgenia came by asking about the singing at the docks. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 73, summer of year 49

The weather turned. Orsolya moved the pair of spectacles indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the singing at the docks. Someone left a brass lantern on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the missing shipment. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over the rumour of a second well flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 74, summer of year 49

At the ticket wagon, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real spool of wire from a fake one by weight alone. At the ticket wagon, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real clockwork bird from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about the tax on doors reached the ticket wagon. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. At the ticket wagon, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 75, spring of year 49

Osric came by asking about the missing shipment. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. Orsolya won 81 copper bits on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on supper. Quillon came by asking about the old tunnels. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. Orsolya won 71 copper bits on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 76, winter of year 49

Orsolya was hired to carry a copper pipe from the costume tent to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya was hired to carry a hand bell from the costume tent to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 77, autumn of year 49

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the new curfew. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the tin whistle indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the new curfew. Orsolya closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Orsolya found a tin whistle half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 78, summer of year 49

Ravi came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the cookfire, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real spool of wire from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the bundle of letters indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the price of lamp oil. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 79, summer of year 49

Orsolya repaired the signal flag at the cookfire for Soren, who paid in 57 copper bits and a long story about the quarantine. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 88 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 80, winter of year 49

A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the big top: 31 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Orsolya found a wax seal half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe came by asking about the harvest count. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 81, winter of year 49

A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 82, spring of year 49

Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the menagerie wagons. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the menagerie wagons. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Orsolya repaired the ledger at the menagerie wagons for Wren, who paid in 4 copper bits and a long story about the quarantine.

Entry 83, summer of year 49

Ulla came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. Orsolya closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Orsolya won 37 copper bits on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 84, spring of year 49

Orsolya found a spool of wire half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya found a signal flag half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 85, autumn of year 49

Kestrel came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 25 of everything, except the clockwork bird, which is always short. At the costume tent, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone. At the costume tent, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 86, summer of year 49

Orsolya won 24 copper bits on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on supper. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya repaired the cracked compass at the cookfire for Noor, who paid in 78 copper bits and a long story about the price of lamp oil.

Entry 87, autumn of year 49

Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 4 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. Orsolya was hired to carry a sack of salt from the ticket wagon to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 88, winter of year 49

Orsolya closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Orsolya was hired to carry a pair of spectacles from the menagerie wagons to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the menagerie wagons. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. At the menagerie wagons, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 89, spring of year 50

Brigid came by asking about the singing at the docks. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the ticket wagon. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a bolt of linen on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. Orsolya won 47 copper bits on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 90, winter of year 50

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. Orsolya won 83 copper bits on a bet about the missing shipment and spent all of it on supper. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya repaired the iron kettle at the cookfire for Noor, who paid in 85 copper bits and a long story about the tax on doors. Orsolya won 61 copper bits on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 91, summer of year 50

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 42 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the costume tent. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 92, spring of year 50

Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. At the menagerie wagons, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone. At the menagerie wagons, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. Orsolya repaired the coil of rope at the menagerie wagons for Jorah, who paid in 48 copper bits and a long story about the new curfew. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 73 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short.

Entry 93, spring of year 51

Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the big top. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the missing shipment. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Zelda came by asking about the new curfew. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 94, summer of year 51

The weather turned. Orsolya moved the spool of wire indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the price of lamp oil. Rumours about the old tunnels reached the cookfire. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 36 of everything, except the iron kettle, which is always short.

Entry 95, winter of year 51

At the cookfire, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the cookfire. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the tin whistle indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the missing shipment.

Entry 96, winter of year 51

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Mara came by asking about the census. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 97, summer of year 51

Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 54 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the census. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 98, summer of year 51

Orsolya repaired the oilskin map at the big top for Jorah, who paid in 64 copper bits and a long story about the singing at the docks. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the big top: 36 of everything, except the clockwork bird, which is always short. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the big top. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 99, summer of year 51

Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 85 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. Orsolya won 87 copper bits on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on supper. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 7 of everything, except the iron kettle, which is always short. Orsolya repaired the coil of rope at the cookfire for Elowen, who paid in 34 copper bits and a long story about the singing at the docks.

Entry 100, winter of year 51

Petra came by asking about the tax on doors. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 82 of everything, except the signal flag, which is always short. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 101, spring of year 51

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Amadou came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. Orsolya closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. At the ticket wagon, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 102, spring of year 51

Orsolya found a clockwork bird half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Orsolya was hired to carry a signal flag from the ticket wagon to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Orsolya was hired to carry a coil of rope from the ticket wagon to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 103, autumn of year 51

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over the comet flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 104, winter of year 51

Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 70 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. Orsolya found a hand bell half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Orsolya won 83 copper bits on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on supper. At the costume tent, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 105, winter of year 52

Orsolya found a wax seal half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the coil of rope indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about who really won the regatta. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 55 of everything, except the oilskin map, which is always short.

Entry 106, spring of year 52

Orsolya closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Greta came by asking about the old tunnels. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. Orsolya repaired the oilskin map at the ticket wagon for Benedikt, who paid in 51 copper bits and a long story about the tariff on salt. A dispute over the comet flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Orsolya won 26 copper bits on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 107, spring of year 52

Zora came by asking about the tax on doors. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the big top: 38 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the big top. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the big top. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 108, winter of year 52

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the old tunnels. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the iron kettle indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the rumour of a second well. Rumours about the old tunnels reached the big top. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the big top: 82 of everything, except the sextant, which is always short. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 109, winter of year 53

Orsolya won 19 copper bits on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on supper. Orsolya won 73 copper bits on a bet about the census and spent all of it on supper. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the tin whistle indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the old tunnels.

Entry 110, summer of year 53

Rumours about the missing shipment reached the menagerie wagons. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the quarantine. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 111, summer of year 53

At the big top, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rumours about the census reached the big top. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the big top: 68 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. At the big top, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 112, winter of year 53

Orsolya found a glass float half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Sable came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 113, spring of year 54

Orsolya closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Orsolya won 37 copper bits on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on supper. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 114, summer of year 54

A dispute over the comet flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the costume tent, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone. Orsolya found a ledger half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Orsolya closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 115, winter of year 54

Nkechi came by asking about the tax on doors. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. Orsolya closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 116, spring of year 54

The weather turned. Orsolya moved the hand bell indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the tariff on salt. Rhoswen came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. Rumours about the quarantine reached the cookfire. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 29 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short.

Entry 117, autumn of year 55

A dispute over the census flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the sextant indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the harvest count. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 118, spring of year 55

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before. Leocadia came by asking about the singing at the docks. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the census. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Orsolya found a hand bell half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 119, spring of year 55

Someone left a signal flag on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. Orsolya repaired the pair of spectacles at the costume tent for Zubair, who paid in 41 copper bits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the costume tent. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 120, spring of year 55

Orsolya repaired the wax seal at the cookfire for Hyacinth, who paid in 46 copper bits and a long story about the rumour of a second well. At the cookfire, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over the comet flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 121, autumn of year 56

The weather turned. Orsolya moved the bundle of letters indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the missing shipment. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the missing shipment. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 122, autumn of year 56

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. Orsolya repaired the sextant at the big top for Torvald, who paid in 23 copper bits and a long story about the comet. Orsolya closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 123, spring of year 56

At the menagerie wagons, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real cracked compass from a fake one by weight alone. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Dashiell came by asking about the harvest count. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 124, summer of year 56

Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the tin whistle indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the census. Orsolya was hired to carry a glass float from the ticket wagon to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 125, spring of year 56

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 81 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short. Orsolya found a brass lantern half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 126, summer of year 56

Orsolya won 49 copper bits on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on supper. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the cookfire. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the old tunnels. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Orsolya repaired the cracked compass at the cookfire for Delphine, who paid in 25 copper bits and a long story about the quarantine.

Entry 127, summer of year 56

Orsolya won 42 copper bits on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on supper. Liora came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 128, autumn of year 56

Orsolya found a tin whistle half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Orsolya closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Orsolya was hired to carry a spool of wire from the costume tent to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Orsolya was hired to carry a sextant from the costume tent to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. At the costume tent, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 129, autumn of year 57

A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the grain scale indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the tariff on salt. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 72 of everything, except the hand bell, which is always short.

Entry 130, spring of year 57

Orsolya won 21 copper bits on a bet about the missing shipment and spent all of it on supper. Orsolya repaired the clockwork bird at the ticket wagon for Wilhelmina, who paid in 14 copper bits and a long story about the price of lamp oil. Someone left a tin whistle on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 131, spring of year 57

Someone left a wax seal on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya found a hand bell half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Someone left a glass float on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 132, spring of year 57

Orsolya found a pair of spectacles half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a iron kettle on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. Orsolya closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Rumours about the tax on doors reached the big top. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 133, spring of year 58

A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya found a spool of wire half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Someone left a iron kettle on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. Orsolya was hired to carry a signal flag from the menagerie wagons to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 134, spring of year 58

Someone left a signal flag on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. Orsolya repaired the bundle of letters at the ticket wagon for Dorothea, who paid in 80 copper bits and a long story about the price of lamp oil. Orsolya repaired the grain scale at the ticket wagon for Umberto, who paid in 76 copper bits and a long story about the census.

Entry 135, spring of year 58

Orsolya repaired the clockwork bird at the cookfire for Astrid, who paid in 44 copper bits and a long story about the comet. Orsolya came by asking about the missing shipment. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. Orsolya closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Rumours about the quarantine reached the cookfire. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 136, winter of year 58

Orsolya won 60 copper bits on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on supper. Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the menagerie wagons. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Halcyon came by asking about the quarantine. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 137, spring of year 58

A dispute over the comet flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the ticket wagon, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone. Orsolya closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 138, autumn of year 58

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. Orsolya closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Olwen came by asking about the tariff on salt. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 139, spring of year 58

At the big top, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real spool of wire from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the big top. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Orsolya found a ledger half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about the harvest count reached the big top. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 140, winter of year 58

Orsolya won 5 copper bits on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on supper. Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the menagerie wagons. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the harvest count. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 141, autumn of year 59

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the comet. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya repaired the oilskin map at the costume tent for Gideon, who paid in 17 copper bits and a long story about the comet. Orsolya closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 142, summer of year 59

A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 74 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short. Osric came by asking about the census. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. Orsolya won 38 copper bits on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on supper. At the menagerie wagons, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 143, winter of year 59

Orsolya found a sextant half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Orsolya repaired the hand bell at the costume tent for Wren, who paid in 32 copper bits and a long story about the old tunnels. Orsolya won 82 copper bits on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on supper. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the coil of rope indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the price of lamp oil. Rumours about the census reached the costume tent. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 144, autumn of year 59

A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the spool of wire indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about who really won the regatta. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 51 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. Orsolya was hired to carry a sextant from the costume tent to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 145, winter of year 59

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. Orsolya repaired the oilskin map at the cookfire for Liora, who paid in 11 copper bits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Wren came by asking about the new curfew. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 146, summer of year 59

Orsolya repaired the cracked compass at the cookfire for Brigid, who paid in 73 copper bits and a long story about the rumour of a second well. Orsolya closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Orsolya won 67 copper bits on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 147, autumn of year 59

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the census for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the menagerie wagons. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Orsolya closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. At the menagerie wagons, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. Eamon came by asking about the tax on doors. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 148, summer of year 59

Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 74 of everything, except the sack of salt, which is always short. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Orsolya found a copper pipe half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 149, autumn of year 59

A dispute over the census flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the ticket wagon, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 150, summer of year 59

A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the cookfire. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 151, autumn of year 59

A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a glass float on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 152, summer of year 59

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the comet. Orsolya read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Orsolya repaired the wax seal at the costume tent for Teodora, who paid in 77 copper bits and a long story about the tax on doors. Vesna came by asking about the new curfew. Orsolya said nothing useful and made tea instead. Orsolya found a glass float half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Orsolya spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 42 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short.

Entry 153, winter of year 59

Orsolya repaired the grain scale at the big top for Katarina, who paid in 87 copper bits and a long story about the comet. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the big top. Orsolya pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Orsolya moved the cracked compass indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the quarantine.

Entry 154, summer of year 59

A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 155, summer of year 59

The weather turned. Orsolya moved the glass float indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the price of lamp oil. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Orsolya has a suspect and is probably right. Orsolya was hired to carry a tin whistle from the menagerie wagons to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 156, winter of year 59

A stranger asked Orsolya for the password to the workshop. Orsolya laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the census flared up between Orsolya and a neighbour outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the big top, Orsolya taught a newcomer how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone.